MOANA WITH SOUND

Part of our Culture Vulture series. For more screenings and information, visit: www.laemmle.com/culturevulture.

In 1924, documentary film pioneers Robert and Frances Flaherty and family traveled to the Samoan island of Savaii to record the native life and make a film that would try to match the success of Nanook of the North. Restored in 2K with native sounds and traditional songs that Flaherty's daughter recorded over a half-century after they shot it, Monica Flaherty's Moana with Sound is a beautiful docu-fiction and important piece of film history.

Genre: Culture Vulture, Documentary

FEATURED REVIEW: Alan Scherstuhl, Village Voice

The debate has always been whether or not Robert J. Flaherty's far-flung films are fiction: In his 1926 Samoan island-life epic Moana, just as in Nanook of the North
